

ABSTRACT OF THE DISCLOSURE

A media publishing system, comprising: a network interface to connect the media publishing system to a user; a plurality of web services to enable the user to build, publish, and access a media project using templates of media items grouped into categories; and a data
5 storage to provide a file system to the plurality of web services, where the file system allows the user to access media items.